Dear Sir:

On behalf of the Yale Broadcasting Company, I would like to accept your quotation for the printing of eight issues of our Program Guide. In doing so, allow me to reiterate that the number of pages should vary from eighteen (probably sixteen) to around twenty-four. However, I feel that they will average out to twenty, the number specified by the quotation.

In a less formal note, I do not know when the copy for the first issue will be delivered. Our Publications Director had a slight bit of trouble with exams, so he did not get it done by the time I had expected. However, it should be in your office no later than I had originally hoped, the end of June. It will be delivered by our business manager, Mr. William Green, who is remaining in New Haven over the summer to handle the station business. He will, in addition, have another publication which we are anxious to have printed by September 14. He will handle the details with you. I would appreciate receiving a copy of the proof before the final copies are run off.

Sincerely,

Peter C. Lewis
Public Relations Director
